Learning Opportunity

Today's adolescents are growing up in a constantly evolving digital world. Join the Building Safer Communities team for a presentation that explores the digital world youth navigate daily, highlighting current benefits, challenges, and trends. Adults will gain insight into the platforms young people use and how they interact online. We'll examine key online risks such as inappropriate content, privacy issues, cyberbullying, and online predators- and provide practical safety tips and strategies for each.

The session also includes guidance on parental controls and app safety, equipping adults with tools to support safer, healthier online experiences for the young people in their lives. You'll walk away with practical tools, helpful conversation starters, and reliable resources to support the young people in your life and to help them build informed and safer online habits.

Building Safer Communities is a community-driven initiative that supports building youth resilience and connection through prevention, education, and intervention. Building Safer Communities is funded through Public Safety Canada and is in partnership with the Lethbridge Police Service. Through the programs Educator Services initiatives, Ashley Killins and Brandee Brown focus on providing educational tools and support tailored to the needs of youth, and those who support youth in our community. Their programs and educational resources related to Online Safety were developed in direct response to concerns raised by community stakeholders and the increasing prevalence of high-risk online behaviour among youth. It's designed to empower both youth and caregivers with practical resources and guidance.
